COMIC: Pueblo Tribal Teacher On The Difficulty Of Getting Students Online

March 30, 2021 · 6:00 AM ET

LA JOHNSON

It's been a year since teachers were handed an unprecedented request: Educate students in entirely new ways amid the backdrop of a pandemic. In this comic series, we'll illustrate one teacher's story each week from now until the end of the school year.

Episode 2:

Lori Chavez, a middle school social studies teacher in Kewa Pueblo, N.M., discusses the importance of staying connected to your community during lockdown.
